

What's Next?

6 Strategies

Sally Edwards, MS, MBA

- Founder & CEO Heart Zones, Inc
- Author
- Professional Triathlete
- App Developer
- Wearable / Heart Rate Monitor Expert
- Creator of the Original Heart Rate Training Programs and Zone Training

Thank You Video

Joe Gooden Presentation - Appreciation from the Heart of Heart Zones and Everyone Here

Strategy #1.

Retrain >100,000 PE Teachers in the USA

Provide ways for current PE teachers to learn how to use enabling technologies into their practice such as today's professional development events, webinars, buzz

Put the Technology word with the word Physical Education

Strategy #2.

Role Model Development

Change the culture of the school to be “activity-based” culture

Help all disciplines of school teachers and administrators to become role models of physical and healthy fitness to their students and parents.

Example: Mark Fennrite-Westonka School District, Minnesota

Strategy #3

Market PE Program to Stakeholders

Provide marketing materials and strategies for PE teachers to market their programs to other teachers, administrators, students, and parent/guardians.

Strategy #4.

Launch a New PE Component

There is an increasing number of heart-related deaths and incidence of other disease-related health risks for students and teachers today. School wide annual screening for early detection of health-related issues, health tracking, and health prevention programs. Wellness coaching can be a component of the post-screening protocols. With annual screening of students, it is possible to lower student and faculty/admin risk and provide PE teachers with new ways to support student and faculty health.

Example: Susan Lahti - Edmonds School District, Washington

Strategy #5.

Build a Smart PE Movement

Within the existing organizations like Shape or statewide PE associations, a concerted strategy to renew Phys Ed in the school system as a required course everyday K-12

Strategy #6

New PE Teacher Training

Introduce advocacy training and skills in new teacher education programs showing how PE teachers can become a Phy Ed “activist”.

Thank You

Sally Edwards

Heart Zones, Inc.

The Smart Fitness Technology
and Education Company

2636 Fulton Avenue

Sacramento, CA 95821

www.HeartZones.com